2019 FINANCIAL REPORT

Dear friends,

We're proudly passing along our financial summary for 2019 along with exciting goals for the upcoming year.

Our treasurer John Keith reports that we had a remarkable $180,543 in income last year, with over 190 individual and 17 church and corporate donors.

PeaceWorks fundraising finished particularly strong at year's end – just in time for our January delegation to hand-carry over $70,000 to our partners in Nicaragua. In all, in 2019, we provided just over $105,000 in direct partner support. We also provided just over $24,000 in material aid, including two humanitarian aid shipments. While the financials are promising, there are important political and economic challenges we can't ignore.

Facing Challenges

Our partners are still experiencing fallout from the ongoing political unrest. On a logistical level, it is almost impossible to wire money to our partners since US banks pulled out of Nicaragua following our government's Nica Act in 2018. Along with hand-carrying donations, we continue to find alternative ways to distribute funding.

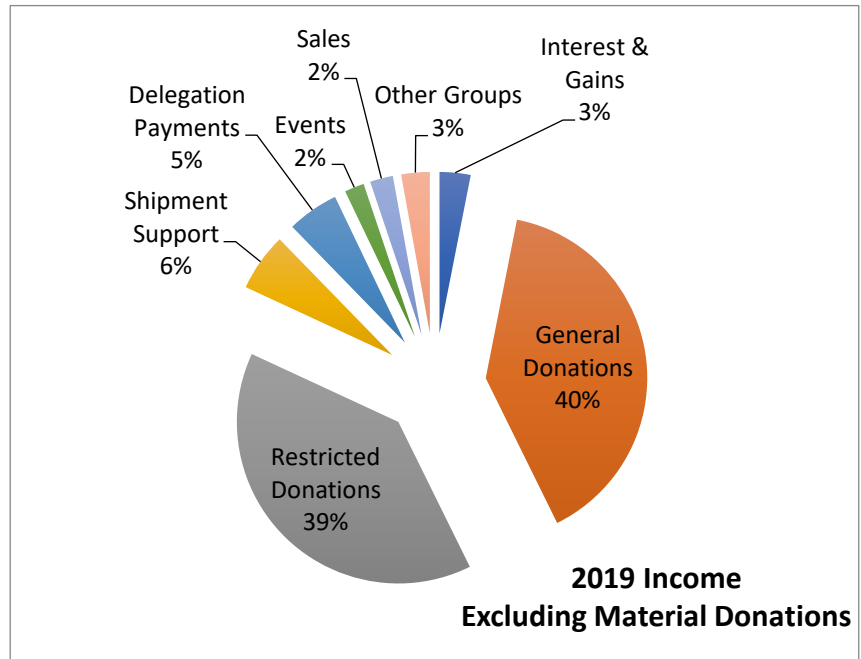

On the ground in Nicaragua, the government has cut back funding to municipalities by approximately 70% – meaning that money for water and other infrastructure projects in most places has all but vanished. Some of our partners' international funding streams have been curtailed as well. While our delegation team felt safe moving about, many Nicaraguans still remain fearful as arbitrary arrests of human rights activists continue.

Signs of Hope

Yet, in spite of it all, our partners in Nicaragua push on. The Chispa de Vida program for kids with disabilities, which took a brief hiatus because of a lack of funds, is back in operation. FEDICAMP, while cutting back staff, still completed major water and sustainable farming projects. This past season, the turtle sanctuary released more turtles than ever. The El Porvenir coffee coop had a good coffee harvest this year. Inhijambia's new program in the Eastern Market is reaching even more street kids and their farm is producing more food every year. Axayacatl continues to support over 700 women whose lives were upended by domestic violence.

We will work hard to make this goal a reality because the work of our Nicaraguan partners—creating safer and more sustainable communities for thousands of Nicaraguan families - men, women and children-- is a priority for all of us.

In addition to our financial goals, PeaceWorks provides many ways for our community to help build peace in Nicaragua, like our material aid shipments and dinner forum events. Come out to our March 14th dinner forum to meet the members of our January delegation and hear about their experiences.

Dinner at 6:30, presentation at 7:30pm at the Friends Meeting in Chatham.

For people unable to go to Nicaragua on one of our delegations, and also for those who ARE able to, from time to time we bring Nicaragua to you. In April we’re bringing up Inhijambia’s Carlos Ernesto Molina to spend a week meeting at schools and churches throughout northern New Jersey, as well as to speak at our April 18th dinner forum about Inhijambia’s current dreams and challenges for the children and young adults they support. .

Also, help us pack and send our humanitarian aid shipment to Nicaragua on May 9th. We need material aid donations and money to get this 78th shipment out to sea and down to Nicaragua.

Thank you for your generosity in 2019 and we hope to see you in the coming months.

In Solidarity,
 Denis, Diane, John, Micha, Maggie, Susan, Marilyn and Guy
